

The Higher Law.

After a career of some fourteen months, marked with no single redeeming feature, the pirate Florida has been taken in a neutral port, surrendering herself ignominiously in the very first instance of her being brought broadside to broadside with an armed vessel of the United States. She had displayed an eminent amount of "chivalry" in the attack and capture of unarmed vessels, but on this, the first and only occasion when she was confronted by an antagonist prepared for battle, she succumbed, and that, too, in a moment not calculated, we should think, even in the eyes of the most ardent admirers of shameless piracy, to give either to her or the favorers of her course much of the prestige which mankind are ever so ready to confer upon individuals, armies or single ships which boldly venture, even though they at the end fall in the contest in open and hand to hand fight.

Unfortunately for this vessel she has at no time maintained fair and hand to hand fight. She has ever been found, as have been her favorers, on the side of the "let me alone" persuasion. No sentiment of clemency, therefore, to a fallen enemy, can be supposed to influence us, and we have only to say that while the particular means that may have been undertaken for the purpose of putting a stop to the depredations of the wretched piratic craft which for such a length of time has managed to make herself an eyesore to the Government of the United States, are unknown to us, we are yet satisfied that whatever they may have been, they were yet justifiable under the circumstances, and we feel assured that a little reflection will cause all who think clearly on the subject, to see that the matter is simply "Delenda est Carthago," and therefore that even though in minor matters the course necessarily pursued was not one to the very letter in accordance with the hoary principles of maritime law, yet that the circumstances were such as to make the case in hand an exception to all general rules, which was done by the commander of the vessel which conquered her (the Florida) and we sincerely hope that for once the Government may support thoroughly and entirely the acts of its agents, and that we may be enabled to show fully to the world that while two blacks do not make one white, it is yet clearly and fully understood that so long as the Deerhound may run away with our lawfully captured prisoners, it is useless for the sympathizers with the Deerhound and with the Florida to raise any cry about violation of neutrality laws, because we choose to go in and capture an accursed pirate wherever found. In any case, we understand the feeling that engenders the recourse to high legal ground as being one based on vexation at defeat, and we trust our Government will once for all maintain an unbroken front in the premises, which will in the long run much more redound to her credit than would any number of square breakdowns similar to what we have seen and lamented in the Mason and Slidell affair, when Com. Wilkes, with right on his side, had to succumb ingloriously. Let this be the last of that business.

Again the wires are "mum"—verily they speaketh not a word.

BIRDS FLIGHTS.—Lately a carrier pigeon flew from Exeter railway station to Camden-grove, England, a distance of 171 miles in little over five hours. [Wild pigeons have been shot at the North with rice in their crops.—Scientific American.]

DIABOLICAL MURDER IN HENDERSON COUNTY, MO.—The Owensboro Monitor of October 13th says:

Charles Winfrey, a wealthy and highly respected citizen of Henderson county, was murdered last week, under the following circumstances, as related to us: A party of nine men, who had been drafted in Indiana, went to Winfrey's residence and tried to persuade or steal from their master a sufficient number of negro men to relieve them from the draft. They made several attempts to accomplish their purpose, but the negroes could not be induced to date Winfrey by trying to intimidate him by trying to intimidate him. They had an order from Col. Moon, who commands at this post, for the negroes for military duty, but this had no effect. They then left. Winfrey then called his servants together and told them that these men would make their appearance again, and if they did not desire to go they would have to assist him in defending themselves. This they readily assented to do, and a signal was to be given by which they would be called to the main building. A noise being heard on the premises the same night, Winfrey got up and opened a side door to give the alarm when he was shot by a man named Feyton, formerly of Henderson county, who was concealed near the door, killing him almost instantly. A man by the name of Pipes, and another named Holder, were among the accomplices. They immediately fled to the opposite side of the river, and have not yet been arrested. As an evidence of attachment existing between Winfrey and his servants, we will state that at the beginning of the war Winfrey divided a large sum of money among his servants, and bade them take and conceal it, which they did, and after he was killed, as we are informed, $6,000 in gold and silver was brought by these faithful negroes and delivered over to the proper person to receive his effects.

HOMICIDE AT LINCOLN.—The Marysville Express gives the following particulars concerning a homicide at Lincoln, Cal. On Monday night, between 10 and 11 o'clock, two men named James Drew and Oscar Henderson, who had been on unfriendly terms, met in front of the Logan House, both armed with knives and pistols. About six weeks ago the parties had a difficulty, when Drew flogged Henderson. Upon their meeting on Monday night, Drew invited Henderson to take a drink, which he declined, when Drew entered the house and in a short time went out. After being absent about half an hour he returned and walked up to the bar, stating that he had been stabbed by Henderson. He died in about 15 minutes. It was found he had been stabbed in the lower portion of the ribs. Henderson gave himself up, acknowledged his guilt and was conveyed to the Auburn jail. About one year since Henderson killed a man named Ross, at Lincoln, in the same manner.

The recent Shakespeare festival at Stratford-on-Avon has resulted in a deficiency of £3,000, which the Committee will have to make good. The musical and dramatic performances cost £2,000.

OUTRAGE AT YREKA.—The Yreka Journal of October 15th says:

On last Friday evening, about half an hour after the Copperhead meeting adjourned, a hundred or more Union men commenced singing the "Battle Cry of Freedom" in front of the Union stand, which is situated about two squares from the Copperhead rostrum. In a short time a large crowd had collected, and the most vociferous calls were made for Van Duzer. Van Duzer came on the stand and commenced a most scathing review of Lewis' speech. He said he had told the people that the Democratic party were fenders of secession. If you will not believe me, will you take the word of Col. A. J. Lewis, who tonight, had said, "There is no power in the Government to enforce obedience to Federal authority: that the North is responsible for the war, and that the South is armed in a holy cause." At this time a crowd of Copperheads, headed by Col. Lewis came down the street, and halting in front of the stand, commenced yelling and hooting like wild beasts. Some of the champions of free speech shouted, "Take him off the stand;" "Let's take him off the stand." No sooner were the words out of their mouths than twenty Union men walked up to them, and in no very complimentary terms ordered them to shut their mouths instantly, an order which the chivalry were not slow to obey. Things looked rather breezy for a while, and there was a good prospect of a free fight, but by the forbearance of Union men the ruffians were allowed to escape the punishment they so richly deserved.

WALL STREET DISCOUNTING PEACE.—The heavy fall in gold and stocks which has been in progress for the last three weeks, received an impetus the other day, which almost created a panic, not only on the Stock Exchange and in the gold room, but in commercial circles generally. There was a heavy fall in the market price of produce, and merchandise of all descriptions was pressed for sale at lower rates. Gold dropped to 211—the lowest price it has touched since the 22d of June—and the probabilities are strongly in favor of a considerable further decline. Wall street is evidently discounting that peace towards which our victories in the field are so rapidly paving the way. Confidence in the restoration of the Union is practically reasserting itself, both by the decline of the gold premium and the firmness of national securities on the market, while everything else is falling. Meanwhile, the entire people are reaping the benefit of this suspicious state of affairs by the reduction of the cost of all the necessities, as well as the luxuries of life, or, in other words, by the increasing purchasing power of the paper dollar.—N. Y. Herald.

HANS EXCITED.—Several gentlemen were lately discussing the alarming prevalence of the crime of wife desertion, women eloping with other men, etc., when a Tontine, who had been listening with great attention, stepped up and in an excited manner said: "If my wife runs away with another man's wife, I will shake him out of her preeches, if she been mine own fader, mein Gott!"

ORIGIN OF MULES IN THE UNITED STATES.—Up to the year 1773 there were scarcely any mules to be found in the United States; those few had been imported from the West Indies, and were of a very inferior order. When Washington returned to private life at Mount Vernon, he became convinced that mules would be better adapted for use in agriculture of the Southern States, as they lived longer, were less liable to disease, require less food, and were more economical than horses. On his views becoming known to the King of Spain he sent him a jack and two jennies. The jack was sixteen hands high, of a gray color, heavily made and of sluggish disposition. About the same time he also received a jack and some jennies from Lafayette, which were procured on the island of Malta. These proved more ferocious and active. By crossing the breed Washington availed himself of the best qualities of the two, and thus introduced excellent mules for farming labor into this country. Such was their superiority that at the sale of the General's effects, one wagon team of four mules sold for $800. At this day these animals are extensively used in the Southern and Middle States.—Virginia Union.

MURDER NEAR CARSON CITY.—The Carson City Evening Post of Nov. 4th, says: Charles Bergerin, a Frenchman, about 30 years of age, who resides in the timber west of Carson, and made his living by hauling wood to Virginia, Gold Hill and Silver City, was returning home by way of the Bedford toll road, when within about two miles of Carson was shot and killed. It is supposed to have been an attempt at robbery resisted. This bold act was committed near Folsom's house, so near that the report of the pistol and the cries of the wounded man were heard. Some two or three persons came out and saw the team pass at a lively pace, the driver shouting, his cries growing fainter until he fell forward dead. In this condition he was found and brought to Carson. A partial examination showed that the shot took effect on the man's breast, just below the throat, and ranged downwards. Bergerin was an industrious and worthy man. At the time of the killing he had in his glove $26. In order to secure this paltry sum the reckless vagabond robbed this man of his life, and to-day walks our streets, listening to the various speculations the act has given rise to.

EARTHQUAKE IN THE NORTH OF ENGLAND.—Between 12 and 1 o'clock on Monday morning, Sept. 26, there was a shock of earthquake in the north of England at Leeds, Skipton, Silsden, Rochdale, Hebden Bridge, Manchester and other places, the peculiar sensation resulting from the shock was felt. In some places persons were awake by the general tremor, and various descriptions of the phenomenon are given, some comparing it to thunder felt but not heard, others to shaking and rocking.

An Eastern exchange says "the Democratic party at the Chicago Convention was a unit." All but the n.—Appeal.

The heirs of William Penn still head the English treasury list. They receive $20,000 per annum.

HEROISM.—Lieut. Buttrick, of the 59th Massachusetts Regiment, writes:

In the battle of September 30th there was a young man killed, a member of the 57th Regiment, who used to live in Concord. His name was Broad. He was never in a battle before, as he has been connected with the ambulance train. He met his death in this way: There was a man shot by a solid shot, cutting one of his legs nearly off. The poor fellow was bleeding to death, but if brought off would in all probability get well. Broad was the only man who would volunteer to go out and fetch him in. It was almost certain death for any man; but said Broad, "I have neither wife nor child to suffer if I am killed." So out he went, and picked him up, put him on his shoulder and brought him in safely, though the bullets flew like hail around him. He came in so promptly that we all thought that he had escaped the bullets. But alas! poor Broad was a wounded man. He laid his burden on the ground, saying, "I may have saved your life but I have lost my own." He was shot through the bowels, and died very soon after. He was as brave a man as ever lived.

THE EMPIRE IN MEXICO.—The Washington correspondence of the N. Y. World, dated Oct. 12, says: Private advices received by the Government here are to the effect that Maximilian's empire is now firmly established, and that the last battle has been fought. There is now no organized force of Mexicans in the field in any part of the great empire of Mexico. The war has now degenerated into a series of mere guerrilla fights which it is supposed the firm, but temperate and conciliatory policy of the new Emperor will speedily subdue. It is no secret that, as soon as the election is over, no matter what the result, Mr. Seward will immediately receive a minister from Maximilian.

HANDEL IMPROVED.—A tourist, wandering round a village churchyard in Cornwall a few years back fell in with some rustic members of the choir coming away from their Saturday afternoon's rehearsal. He asked one of them what music they had been singing. The answer was, "Handel." "Well, but," he said, "don't you find Handel rather difficult?" "Why, no sir," the Cornishman replied, "not very. You see, he alters him."

Local Matters.

A volunteer of the 3d, to us familiarly known, on one day had the misfortune to be seriously ill—the cause for which, was assigned (and it may be truthfully) to be the over-indulgence in "Valley Tan." His disease was never "metaphysically" pronounced—yet, it was evident that he was afflicted with a seriously sore throat, and a tremendously swollen tongue. On our vol. presenting himself to the Post-Surgeon for examination his case was pronounced as exceedingly dangerous, and if some specific remedy was not at once administered that his case would result in his taking apartments in our Camp Cemetery—this matter, of course, grated harshly on his ears, which had the effect to the exercise of unceasing care and prudence on his part. However, a prescription was penned, and our vol. hastened to the Surgery, where he was, by due course of treatment in the way of throat swabbing, lancing and swallowing of compounds, greatly relieved. On emerging from the door of the Surgery he was hailed from the window in the officers row—whither he repaired—and through sympathy of the kind lady friends within, was offered a cot. Our vol. was overwhelmed with gratitude, and at once, but rather bashfully, accepted the kind offer; but, the great trouble with our vol. while enjoying his proffered cot and gentle nursing was, that he couldn't talk—no, he could not speak a word—he couldn't swallow, and he couldn't even turn his head—and his affliction great as it was, proved a source of fun and amusement to those with whom he was so kindly treated; and these lady friends, although deeply sympathizing with our vols. affliction, could not suppress a smile at his ludicrous attempts at conversation and playing the agreeable; and having occasion to be personally in his company several times, we confess that we could not help laughing at him also. All this provoking, plighting and hectoring, our vol. bore with manly fortitude and becoming patience; but, by a certain twinkling of his eye, and peculiar expression of his features, we could discover that he was wishing for some opportunity for retaliation—and sure enough he has had it.

On Saturday last as he was strolling about Camp, he, in his rambles called on those lady friends, who, some months since had enjoyed themselves so hugely at his expense—and who should be the first one he met, but the same who had enjoyed his muddling talk while his tongue was swollen, and who, afflicted with a hugely swollen mouth. Now, says our vol., is my time for revenge. It was a cruelty to cause a laugh from his lady friend, but his taunts called loudly for revenge—so, laugh she must, and laugh she had to—until her sore mouth caused an excruciating cry of agony, and forbearance with our Vols. bitter retaliation could no longer be "did." So with a promise exacted from her that allusions to his terrific tongue should this day cease, he returned to the camp, then by swearing that he would drop the subject of "sore mouth." Articles of agreement were drawn, signed, sealed, delivered and witnessed by the members of the household and our Vol. bid good bye and went on his way exulting in his triumph.

A party of some seven or eight discharged soldiers faced the cold wind of yesterday morning and started eastward—although they have a splendid outfit and everything seemingly adapted for their comfort, yet it requires a strong nerve and brave heart to encounter the hardships of a journey at this inclement and perilous season of the year—but we know of none who possess these requisites more fully than our Cal. Vols.—they are inured to hardships and have on all occasions proved themselves intrepid.

TRAGEDY IN KING COUNTY (W. T.)—A fatal affray occurred on White river, in King county, on Monday last, between Joe Brannan, a well known citizen of that county, and a man named Garner; and what is too frequently the case, a woman was the cause. The circumstances, as near as we can gather them at present, are as follows: This man Garner had been employed by Brannan, some time previous, as a hand upon the farm, and one day, noticing what he deemed too much freedom between Garner and his (Brannan's) wife, ordered him to leave the premises, with the distinct understanding that should he ever come there again, he, Brannan, would kill him. Garner went off and stopped at Dr. Smith's farm, on Salmon Bay, some eighteen or twenty miles from Brannan's. After remaining there awhile, Garner found means to convey a letter to Brannan's wife, proposing to meet her some dark night, near her residence, and elope with her. It is stated that the woman replied to the proposition; agreed to elope with him, and appointed Monday night last as the time. Before the time arrived, however, Mrs. Brannan informed her husband of the whole plot, who immediately determined to waylay Garner and punish him severely, but did not intend to kill him. The time having arrived, and Garner being unable to procure horses, had taken a canoe and proceeded up White river, until within a mile or two of Brannan's house, when, being on the watch, together with a brother of his wife and another man, Brannan suddenly stepped out in front of Garner and commanded him to "stand!" To which Garner promptly replied, "Yes, d—n you, I will stand," drew his revolver and fired square at Brannan. Brannan being struck by the ball staggered a little; recovering himself, leveled his rifle and shot Garner through the heart, killing him instantly. Brannan was then carried to his house, and at last accounts was not expected to live but a few hours. He was struck near the groin, the ball lodging in one of his kidneys.

Since the above was in type, we learn from Dr. Maynard, the attendant physician, that Brannan is improving, and hopes are entertained of his recovery.—Olympia (W. T.) Democrat.
